OCTOBER HIGHLIGHTS:

Atlanta Chapter BEAM Events

The Black Energy Awareness Month (BEAM) Committee sponsored two special events last month... presenting interactive educational programs to 50 students at Redan High School in Stone Mountain, and at South Atlanta High School in Atlanta. Redan's program was held October 11th and South Atlanta's program was held October 18th.

The students learned about the nuclear, electric and natural gas industry, as well as careers in various energy fields, such as engineering, finance, national accounts, and industrial hygiene. Tough questions were asked about solar energy, water power, storing nuclear waste, and college and career choices. The panelists also stressed the necessity of hard work, dedication and commitment to be successful. The students were attentive and very much engaged in the discussions, and were presented with BEAM t-shirts, pens and other trinkets to remember the experience.

Additional pictures of the programs are provided on page 7 of this newsletter.

Presenters and volunteers were: BEAM Chairperson Gregory Kendrick (SCS), President Eric Duncan (GPC), Cherryl Harris (GPC), Eric Arnold (GPC), Clint Lowery (GPC), Kendra Cowan (GPC), Tyrone Hylick (GPC), Tequila Smith (GPC), Blake O'Farrell (AGL), Allen Spivey (AGL), Anthony Moore (GPC), LaTunya Goodwin (GPC), John Moore (GPC) and Kadeon Reid (GE).

Kudos and congratulations to all the presenters and volunteers for implementing two successful and beneficial programs.

ABL Honors blackEnergy

Sonja Ebron, CEO of blackEnergy, was honored with the 2007 "Non-Traditional Business Enterprise" award by the Atlanta Business League at its 23rd Annual Super Tuesday Conference on September 25, 2007. The Super Tuesday Conference is ABL's signature event, designed to recognize and celebrate African American business women.

The non-traditional business award was presented to Ebron, a PhD electrical engineer, for her pioneering efforts to make deregulated energy work for households and other small consumers. Through a program of GasKey, a certificated natural gas marketer, blackEnergy helps consumers support black communities using their utility bills while lowering their natural gas rates through cooperative buying. The company also distributes energy conservation products nationally through its e-commerce storefront at www.blackenergy.com.

"We appreciate Sonja for showing us all how to do well by doing good," said Leona Barr-Davenport, President of the Atlanta Business League.

For over 70 years, the Atlanta Business League, an affiliate of the National Business League, has served as a business developer and advocate for minority-owned businesses. Dr. Booker T. Washington founded the National Business League on principles of self-help and self-sufficiency with a commitment to reinvesting community money within the community.

"This recognition from the Atlanta Business League is very special because we have the same essential mission -- to demonstrate the power of self-help in Black communities," said Ebron.

AABE Atlanta Chapter is honored to have her as a member and extends our congratulations. Sonja is the featured History-maker this month. Her profile appears at the end of this newsletter.

JaQuetta Garrison, President & CEO of GNC Electrical Construction, LLC and Leslie McNeal, President of McNeal Professional Services were also honored at the event.

GEORGIA NEWS:

100 YEAR HISTORIC DROUGHT CONDITIONS IN GEORGIA

The Georgia Environmental Protection Division (EPD) has issued an exceptional drought response level four (the highest level) for the northern third of the state. Outdoor residential water use is prohibited in 61 counties including the cities of Atlanta, Rome, Athens and Columbus. A level two (severe) restriction applies to the cities of Macon and Augusta in which alternate evening watering hours are available to odd and even numbered addresses. Georgia's average annual rainfall has been 16 inches below normal and projects a mild, warm winter.

Water levels at Georgia Reservoirs Lake Allatoona and Lake Lanier along with local river basins are projected to be dry in three months or less. The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and the U.S. Game & Wildlife Reserve release 1.9 billion gallons per day of water from these lakes to protect endangered species such as mussels and sturgeon downstream in Alabama and Florida. The release also keeps water quality levels high as it treats raw sewage dumped in our rivers. Water from the Chattahoochee River also cools turbines at Southern Nuclear's Plant Farley in Dothan, Alabama. Georgia Governor Sonny Perdue has filed legal action to persuade the Corps to slow releases. The governor also wants the President to declare Georgia a natural disaster area. Alabama and Florida governors are opposed to this effort. Most critics say the drought is caused by excessive population growth and poor planning. The Atlanta Regional Commission and other environmental advisers claim that climate change, the increase in CO<sub>2</sub> emissions, is the cause of this drought. A bioenergy conference was held in Atlanta on October 17th to discuss opportunities for businesses to combat climate change.

The biggest users of water in North Georgia are power plants. Water is used to cool down steam generators and approximately 93% of water is recycled and sent back into the rivers. Oglethorpe Power Corporation's Floyd County plants use three billion gallons per day. Georgia Power plants in Cobb and Coweta Counties use 400 to 700 million gallons/day. In Clark County, Fall Line Hydro uses 533 million gallons/day at the Tallassee Shoals Hydroelectric Project. The Governor has ordered public utilities to cut demand by 10%.

Other states such as California, Kentucky, Idaho, North Carolina, Alabama and Tennessee are also in levels 3 (extreme) and 4 (exceptional) drought conditions. Businesses are exempt from restrictions but that may change soon.

Overall, 55% of average water use is consumed by Residential customers. Commercial customers use 21% and unbilled water use (leaks) is 18%. Public facilities such as water parks and pools use 3%. Industrial customers also use 3% of water. Approximately 60% of all household water use in the summer months is applied to watering lawns and plants for landscape purposes. Tankless water heaters such as Rinnai or Titan reduce storage capacity and are eligible for a $300 tax credit. Indoor and outdoor water saving tips for homes and businesses can be found on the AABE Atlanta Chapter website under Energy Education.
