

Meet and Greet with the Michigan Public Service Commission

By Terrence Daniels

The Michigan Chapter of American Association of Blacks in Energy (AABE) hosted a meet and greet for the current and recently appointed commissioners of the Michigan Public Service Commission (MPSC). The affair was held at Crown Plaza in Lansing, MI on November 26, 2013. Chairman John Quackenbush, Commissioner Greg White, Commissioner Sally Talberg and former Chairman Orjiakor Isiogu were graciously in attendance. In addition, Consumers Energy and DTE had leadership participation representing Engineering, Operations, Rates, and Regulatory Affairs.

AABE honored former Chairman Orjiakor Isiogu for his contributions as a commissioner of the MPSC and partnering with AABE to share information and encourage participation of minorities in public policy related to the energy industry. Commissioner Greg White expressed his appreciation for the expertise and professionalism AABE members have brought to the table over the years. Chairman John Quackenbush and Commissioner Sally Talberg shared their excitement about working with their fellow Commissioners and representatives from AABE on energy issue facing all residents of Michigan. AABE's meet and greet with the Commissioners of the MPSC was an evening of networking and sharing perspectives on the energy landscape of the state of Michigan.
